AMUSEMENTS

ARTHUR GUY EMPEY'S
PLAY AT COLUMBIA

Arthur Guy Empey's famous war super-photoplay "Over the Top" will open a two-day stay at the Columbia theater this afternoon. Two performances will be given each afternoon and the same number each night. This is a return engagement for this production. It is not through "popular request" that the play is being brought back, however. Although the Columbia management heard several favorable comments on the picture during its first run in Phoenix, it is entirely on the merit of the production that it was booked for a return engagement. "Over the Top" is a war picture but not a propaganda vehicle. Like many of the so-called war productions, it was adapted from Empey's book by the same name and deals with Empey's own personal experiences while in the front line trenches, or while dashing across No Man's Land in pursuit of the Germans. A news weekly, showing interesting happenings at home and abroad, will augment the program for the two days only, Tuesday and Wednesday. Not to deceive the reader, this news weekly is not a war film, simply showing current events of interest to the public generally.

Final Day of "For Husbands Only"

This is the final day's showing of the remarkable picture, "For Husbands Only." It is perhaps safe to say that no product that has been screened at the Hip this year has attracted as much comment as this particular picture. Done by Lois Weber, the Belasco of the screen with charming Mildred Harris in the title role of the girl who caused all the trouble it has a double reason for its appeal. Then it is different for it is a story within a story and again one is reminded "that back of all trouble looms the sex problem, big as ever." "For Husbands Only" is followed by Mary McLaren in "Bread," a companion play to her well remembered success "Shoes," which was in its day a sensation. "Bread" is the story of a girl on the stage struggling to be decent while every influence is trying to contribute to her downfall, and "Bread" is one of the reasons she has for the step she takes. It is a very human drama with lots of touches that bring the tears. It will remain for two days and is further enhanced as an entertainment by a Sennett Comedy.

W. S. Hart at the Lamara Today

The Artcraft company's description of "Selfish Yates," the newest W. S. Hart picture which opens at the Lamara this morning for a three days' stay starts off like this: "In the Mining Town of Hirsaty Center," in the "Dos Cabezas Mountains in Arizona," there you have the start and the rest is told of this character of the west of yesterday. This "Selfish Yates," who lives only for Yates, until chance throws a pair of helpless young girls into his path and then Yates does just what a lot of other men have done, he softens, and takes a hitch in his life and—but to disclose what really happens to this Yates party could be to rob this picture of its chance to entertain, for it has plenty that will appeal to any man or woman for Yates loves just as hard as he hates, and he certainly "becomes almost human," as "The Oklahoma Hog," one of his besom friends expresses it when he sees Yates fall for the pretty face of the new "gal," Selfish Yates is some picture. One of the real Hart brand without frills. It is being shown for the first time in Arizona at the Lamara. A Burton Holmes travelogue accompanies it as an added side dish.

"To Hell With the Kaiser"

"To Hell With the Kaiser," the wonder picture which has been chosen as the opening bill of the newly-renovated and decorated Elks theater, has been justly and aptly termed the most sensational picture of the war. It is so distinctly different that it at once assumes a place by itself. It is a combination of incidents that carries a punch every moment, and there is an appeal to loyalty, coupled with a popularization of actual events that will cause a world of comment. It is made with a view of demonstrating to the world the true Hun spirit behind the war, and will live as a vivid arraignment of the terrible, remorseless barbarism with which Kultur has cursed civilization. It shows what every American wants to see the truth, naked and undraped. Numbered in the past is Lawrence Grant, as the Kaiser, supported by Olive Tell and a cast of 12,000.
